Helpful Information About Teenage/New Drivers

- There is a one in three chance of an accident the first 24 months at the wheel!
- Most states tell us driving is a privilege, not a right. What is the attitude in your household? Finally, you don't have to drop off your teenager here, there, everywhere—like a taxi service. As tempting as it may be to throw them the keys, we suggest tight reins at least for the first 12 months.
- When giving permission to drive, consideration should be given to:
 - Weather Conditions
 - The Time of Day
 - Curfew
 - Checking In
 - Number of Passengers
 - Acceptable Destinations
 - Phone Charger for Car
(eliminates a common excuse)
- Yes, we suggest holding in the reins for your teenage driver for their health and welfare, other drivers and pedestrians' well being, and your pocket book.
- If you would like us to meet with your prospective new drivers, so they can hear it from someone else, we'd be more than happy to speak with them.
- Call us to discuss practical vehicles for your new driver before you start shopping.
- Should you send your teen away to college their first year with a car?
- Some companies provide discounts for children away at college without their vehicles. Please advise us if this applies to your young driver.
